DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments, filed 4/17/2006, with respect to the rejection(s) of claim(s) 1-31 under U.S.C. 103 have been fully considered and are persuasive. Therefore, the rejection has been withdrawn. However, upon further consideration, a new ground(s) of rejection follows..

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Araki et al (6,908,724).

Araki et al disclose a fluorine-containing polymer for use as a chemically amplified photoresist. The polymer includes a variety of polymers and monomers, and may take the structure: M1-M2-M3-N, wherein M1 is of structure similar to the instant monomer II (see column 147-149), M2 is an alicyclic monomer, M3 is of structure similar to that of the instant monomer I (see column 158-159), and N is selected from monomers such as ethylene, vinyl ether, allyl, or the monomers described in columns 39-41 which are suitable to be combined with the novel fluorine-containing monomers (claim 16). The monomers described in columns 147-149 and 158-159 comprise groups falling within the scope of the instant claims 2-14. The compositions further comprises an acid generator (such as an onium salt as described in columns 62-93), and is a UV, specially VUV resist (157 nm; see abstract). Also, a solvent, an organic base, and optionally a crosslinker should the resist be a negative resist. The resist is then employed in a conventional method of forming a resist pattern columns 94-96 and examples in columns 215-219).

Given the teachings of the references, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to prepare the material of Araki et al choosing to employ the M1-M2-M3-N polymer either alone, or in combination with an additional novel polymer taught by the reference, which comprises monomers meeting the structural limitations of the instant monomers I and II, with reasonable expectation of achieving a material having high etching resistance.

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Takechi et al (6,329,125), Hatakeyama et al (6,835,524), and Ito et al (6,548,219) are cited for their teachings of similar monomers.
